

GEORGETOWN HERALD.

The Press is for the diffusion of knowledge; to accomplish its mission it must be free from all despotism of 35 cent or 40 cent fee.

VOLUME X.—No. 23. SCOTT COUNTY, KENTUCKY, AUGUST 17, 1854. WHOLE NUMBER 491.

PREPARATORY DEPARTMENT

GEORGETOWN COLLEGE,

WILL OPEN ON THE

30 MONDAY IN SEPTEMBER NEXT.

N. B. WALLER, A. M., Principal.

THE services of Mr. Waller have been permanently secured. He brings with him a reputation as an accomplished and successful instructor of youth, and a thorough knowledge of the principles of the College. He is a native of the State of

Virginia, and has spent the greater portion

of his life in that State, where he has

been engaged in the education of youth

for many years. He is a member of the College, and has been a student of the same institution for several years. He is well qualified to instruct in the

principles of the College, and to superintend the studies of the students. He is a native of the State of

Virginia, and has spent the greater portion

of his life in that State, where he has

been engaged in the education of youth

for many years. He is a member of the

College, and has been a student of the

same institution for several years. He is

well qualified to instruct in the

principles of the College, and to

superintend the studies of the

students. He is a native of the State of

Virginia, and has spent the greater portion

of his life in that State, where he has

been engaged in the education of youth

for many years. He is a member of the

College, and has been a student of the

same institution for several years. He is

well qualified to instruct in the

principles of the College, and to

superintend the studies of the students. He is a native of the State of

Virginia, and has spent the greater portion

of his life in that State, where he has

been engaged in the education of youth

for many years. He is a member of the

College, and has been a student of the

same institution for several years. He is

well qualified to instruct in the

principles of the College, and to

superintend the studies of the students. He is a native of the State of

Virginia, and has spent the greater portion

of his life in that State, where he has

been engaged in the education of youth

for many years. He is a member of the

College, and has been a student of the

same institution for several years. He is

well qualified to instruct in the

principles of the College, and to

superintend the studies of the

students. He is a native of the State of

Virginia, and has spent the greater portion

of his life in that State, where he has

been engaged in the education of youth

for many years. He is a member of the

College, and has been a student of the

same institution for several years. He is

well qualified to instruct in the

principles of the College, and to

superintend the studies of the students. He is a native of the State of

Virginia, and has spent the greater portion

of his life in that State, where he has

been engaged in the education of youth

for many years. He is a member of the

College, and has been a student of the

same institution for several years. He is

well qualified to instruct in the

principles of the College, and to

superintend the studies of the students. He is a native of the State of

Virginia, and has spent the greater portion

of his life in that State, where he has

been engaged in the education of youth

for many years. He is a member of the

College, and has been a student of the

same institution for several years. He is well qualified to instruct in the

CARTER'S

SPANISH MIXTURE

Not a particle of Mercury in it.

As an Infallible Remedy for Rheumatism, King's

Evil, Rheumatism, Obsolete Gout, Sciatic

Neuralgia, Pains of the Neck, Stiffness of Joints, Dropsy, Swelling of the Feet, King

Worms, B. S. Throat, Stomach, Liver, and all the other ailments of the human system.

It is a most valuable medicine, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

entirely free from mercury, and is

"Time, Faith and Energy."

HENRY R. FRENCH, EDITOR

GEORGETOWN

THURSDAY, - - AUGUST 24, 1834.

C. King, town, paid to No 21, vol 9	$2 00
Wm. B. Robinson, Rawling Green, Mo., paid to No 19, vol 11	2 00
Charles Nichols, town, paid to No 23, vol 10	1 00
Dr. Wm. Barlow, town, paid to No 23, vol 10	5 00
E. Hall, Covington, paid to No 52, vol 10	2 00
M. Scruggs, county, paid to No 51, vol 10	4 00
S. Bradley, P. O., paid to No 6, vol 11	2 00
S. Bradley, county, paid to No 11, vol 11	2 00
Lewis Pence, Weston, Mo., paid to No 39, vol 10	1 75
Capt. Jns. Vance, Turkey Foot, paid to No 13, vol 13, 11	1 75
M. Viley, Great Crossings, paid to No 23, vol 11	1 75
John Hall, county, paid to No. 18, vol 11	1 75
John, Johnson & Scott, N. Orleans, paid to No 52, vol 10	2 00
J. Miller, Oxford, paid to No. 18, vol 10	2 00
S. Payne, Payne's Depot, paid to No. 17, vol. 11	4 00
T. B. Flournoy, Midway, paid to No. 23, vol. 12	5 00

WANTED.

A N. apprentice to the printing business. One who is not afraid to work; and one who knows how to read and write. A lad from the country would be preferred. II. R. FRENCH.

TAKE NOTICE.

THE Slave-holders east of Georgetown, and west of the Henry's Mill road, and adjacent to Delphian, are requested to meet at Delphian on the first Saturday in September, at 3 o'clock P. M.

Aug. 24, 1834-24-21.

In this age of progress and of iris-hued variety, an editor that faithful friend of the public, is oft times sorely puzzled to keep up with the cars; in other words, to keep his readers well posted as to all that is occurring new and of interest—true it has been said, 'that there is nothing new under the sun,' (we marvel if good old Solomon knew aught about the electric telegraph, and steam engine) well at least there is constantly happening arrangements, combinations &c., which bestows an air of novelty even many an ancient theme, and way worn subject.

Thinking over the wants of our readers, and lamenting over the scarcity of news, we chanced upon some of the admirable, wonderful and sublime works, of that good and great man Swedenborg; and we could not but be surprised, that although and doctrines of such beauty and value, should have been so long neglected by that great medium the Press; and then reflecting that all things must have a beginning, we, having pen in hand, commenced collecting for the examination of such of our readers who possessing, true christian principles gladly welcome every truth, and all things pure and good, even though they may not be embraced in the doctrines, and creed of that church of which they chance to be a member!

'Full many a gem
Of purest pyresence.'

The bigot and the fanatic may glance with contempt over these selections, but who man possessing vital religion, and who adds to that an inquiring and receptive mind will peruse with exceeding satisfaction;

GEMS OF THOUGHT.

From the Writings of Swedenborg.

Conversion is not an instantaneous change as is supposed by many; nor is it an act accomplished at once, and then ever forever, it is as continuous as Respiration, and Regeneration is as continuous as is the life of the soul.

Repentance is the first step in conversion, that is the renunciation of self-love, and the love of the world, as they manifest themselves in the particular acts of an evil life; It involves self examination, the explorations of the affections and thoughts by the light of Heaven, and the sincere renunciation of whatever is evil and false.

Conversion is turning away from self to the Lord—it is turning from the World toward Heaven—it is a renunciation of all selfish and mere worldly pursuits, to the Lord, to the Church, and to the good of all.

Redemption was not effected (as the world too generally believes) by the SON of God, submitting to be crucified in order to appease the WRATH of our Heavenly Father—Redemption was effected by GOD HIMSELF! He assuming human nature, and in that nature meeting and conquering man's spiritual foe; thus enabling him to act in freedom, to see the truth, to put away the evil of his doings—to cease to do evil,—to learn to do well.

The Divine Word contains an interior sense and when this sense is understood, reason and revelation may be made to harmonize, which with the mass of mankind at present is not the case.

The views of the old Churches concerning the fall and the recovery of the human race are utterly at variance with our intuitive ideas of justice and propriety, that is in direct opposition to the common sense of mankind.

The Bible when made clear by the light of Heaven, contains all useful knowledge; and knowledge not drawn directly or indirectly from the Bible, and not in harmony with it, is utterly unknown in Heaven, and can therefore be of no substantial use to any immortal being.

What an important truth is this for all parents to become acquainted with—and how unwise and sinful is it, to waste years and lavish money in acquiring a fashionable, versus a modern education, which when acquired, is of no benefit—possibly, but a hindrance to an entrance into, or to the perfect enjoyment of Heaven.

When we read a bad book, we are exposed not only to the evil and false principles that it contains, but also to the evils and falsities of those wicked spirits with which the book most certainly associates and surrounds us.—The reverse of this statement will show the doubly delightful influence produced by a book breathing of truth and of purity.

We can only properly instruct our children 'the heritage of the Lord' by becoming ourselves the doers of the truths and good we would wish to inculcate; and if the divine Word be in our hearts—in our souls, we shall have but little need of teaching them in the form of tasks, for our every word and action speaking to them—our children cannot live with us without learning of us.

Oh, most truthful words and most responsible parents; and does not this explain our too frequent failure with our precious little ones? Do we not too often teach the lesson "Do as I say, not as I do!" In natural things children are the reflex of their parents also, so they not too often the same in holy and heavenly things?

To such of our readers who are sincere and earnest seekers after Truth—to such, and their name is legion, who stand shrinking and doubtful on the brink of skepticism we would recommend to subscribe for "The Messenger," a semi-monthly magazine devoted to the principles of the new Church. The April No. will be found most profitable and pleasing address Rev. J. C. Stuart, Cincinnati. Terms $1.25 a year in advance.

FASHIONABLE BONNETS.—In a neighboring village, a lady, determined to be in the very height of the fashion, entrusted her fashionable bonnet to the care of her servant in order that it might be as far back on her head as possible! The result was, that on her arrival at her place of destination, she found herself minus bonnet and servant. The former being in possession of the latter; who, taking advantage of the 'distance which lends enchantment to the view,' had cloped to Cincinnati, bonnet and all. We testify of that which we know; or of which at any rate, we have reliable authority for asserting. Even 'old Zack' won't deny our assertion.

Complaints reach us from every quarter almost of the shortness of the crop; and many, in anticipation of hard times, are looking with dread to the future. The best advice we can tender to those afflicted with these distressing anticipations is, to economize expenses, cut off all extras, such as cigars, tobacco, whisky, &c., &c. Keep out of debt; keep cool, keep clear of doctors, drink nothing but similar evils; but lastly, and to conclude, if you wish to weather the approaching storm, secure an easy conscience, and save yourself from the fangs of our collector, 'walk up to the Captain's office and settle!'

THE BANKS OF TENNESSEE AND INDIANA.—The excitement among the bill holders of the banks of the States has subsided. The brokers yesterday were buying freely at former rates of discount, and we have no doubt in a few days confidence will be entirely restored.

The usury law will probably be repealed in England, a bill to that effect having been read a second time in the House of Lords. The Marquis of Landdown said the time had come for altogether abolishing these laws. Lord Campbell rejoiced to have lived to see the day when the usury laws received their death blow. Lord Brougham, on moral as well as mercantile grounds, also rejoiced at the destruction of these laws as they were not only mischievous, but presented loopholes for evasion.

The majority for Stites over McHenry, for Judge of the Court of Appeals, will be about 5,000. The official and reported majorities in all the counties in the district except Fulton, Hickman and Crittenden give Stites a majority of 450.

Assault on an Editor.
We learn from the Paris Flag that an assault was made upon its editor, in Lexington, the other day, by Thompson Flournoy, a relative of Matt. Ward. In consequence of a paragraph published in that journal of the preceding week, reflecting in very harsh terms upon Matt. Ward. The paragraph, as we conceive, was altogether uncalculated, exceedingly bitter and very ungenerous; ostending Col. Pike as we have reason to do, we feared at the time that the hot blood of some of Mr. Ward's friends would prompt them to inflict personal violence upon the editor in retaliation for the publication of the offensive paragraph—a paragraph prompted no doubt, by momentary impulse, and with no evil design upon the part of Col. Pike.

Our fears have been realized; Col. Pike has been violently assaulted, and probably escaped with his life, only by the prompt interposition of his friends; he being a feeble man, and entirely unarmed. While his assailant is represented as a very large man, and was armed with a club or cane.

This is all wrong; no possible good can accrue to any party by any such attempt to muzzle the press; public sentiment in Kentucky will frown down all such attempts, and proceeding from what source it may, put its seal of condemnation thereupon. When will men learn that two wrongs can never make a right; and cease to act upon the dictates of impulse and passion which ever defeat their own purpose? When, we say, will reason and religion curb the passions and guide the actions of the impulsive and hot blooded sons of "the Sunny South?" Col. Pike, if he had designed malice, could not have written a paragraph better calculated to create sympathy on behalf of Matt. Ward, in all generous minds; and Mr. Flournoy, if he desired to benefit his friend and relative, could not have adopted a better mode of prejudicing the public mind against him, than by his assault upon Col. Pike. We speak more in sorrow than in anger, when we assert that the action of both gentlemen was highly reprehensible; we regret both occurrences, equally the promptings of thoughtless impulse, on two grounds. One is, that the freedom of the Press, in Kentucky (no ways remarkable) should be struck a blow in the person of Col. Pike one of its most competent and fearless exponents. Another, be sure the action of Mr. Flournoy has but added rancor to public sentiment against Matt. Ward; partially paralyzed the efforts of his true friends to stem the torrent of prejudice and persecution, (which has hitherto borne him down, and, as it were, crushed him to the earth,) by placing in the hands of his personal enemies, demagogues and petty panders to popular prejudice, a not very powerful weapon whereby they may inflame public sentiment to his personal prejudice and even to the prejudice of those who, through conscientious regard for truth, justice and mercy, would venture to offer in his behalf, "a plea in abatement."

Would to heaven that wiser and more prudent counsels had obtained with our astounded friend of the Flag, and the indignat friends of Matt. Ward; whereby unwarranted and ungenerous continuities would have been spared; the liberty of the press preserved intact; and the laws of our common country hold inviolate. Let us hope as good citizens and law-abiding men, that ere this both gentlemen have repented of their errors of the head; and that wiser counsels prevailing, they will learn wisdom by experience, and for the future respectively exercise toward each other and their fellow men, more charity and more bravery than to assail the character of an unfortunate man or assault the person of a feeble one.

Col. John C. Noble has purchased an interest in the Louisville Times, and will hereafter be associated with John O. Bullock, Esq., in the editorial as well as the property department of the paper. Wm. Tauer, Esq. retires from the paper, to engage in other pursuits.

A writer in the New York Mirror, speaking of the colored population of that city, says they are "poor, and live from hand to mouth. They seem to have no ambition but to dress; their conduct is frivolous, their habits very bad, and lives short; for the masses rarely reach the age of forty."

Four hostile newspapers, said the great Napoleon, 'are more to be feared than a hundred thousand bayonets.' The Little Corporal was right—'Vox populi, &c.

Who censures all, his censure is profitless; who praises all, his praise is worthless.

The following article from the Cincinnati Commercial attacks smartly of truth and common sense; its facts are remarkably pertinent and precisely applicable to the present position of the Herald, even to the ultimate illustration of the demitting subscriber and generous patron, far south, whose longings for an independent press were of the intensest character! Bah!

Breaking Down the Newspaper Press.

There is no time when a certain style of humankind think they are in the way of more signally certifying their own importance than when they determine to strike a deadly blow at an obnoxious newspaper concern, by refusing it their patronage. Rather a comical episode that kind fell under our notice a day or two since. A city official, who could not content himself with paying his balance due to the carrier, and sardoniously discharging his receipt of the Cincinnati, laying down, with an air of immense pomposity, the dimes which he estimated to be due, demanded that his paper should be stopped. The clerk being too busy to be stopped, he indulged in expressions of alarm at so portentous an event, quietly made the proper memoranda, and after lingering awhile, the indignant gentleman departed. He was, however, far from being satisfied. He had expected a sensation, and was disappointed. Meeting, in the course of the day, one of our employers, he inquired how they felt, down at the office, since he stopped his paper; and received in reply, that the concern was still in existence.

It does not seem to be understood by many that it is one thing to stop their paper, and another thing to break down the press from which it is issued; and a few words may not be improper to show the position in which a journal like ours stands to those who purchase it. As near as we can estimate, the indignant gentleman who perpetrated upon us a depraved act, by the act of a weekly revenue of from three-fourths to five-sixths of one cent. Taking the bare cost of paper, ink, and press work, and leaving out of the question the labor of editors, reporters and actual cost of every sheet we issue is equal, within a minute fraction of a cent, to the price which we receive. Add these items, and the cost of our circulation is over ten thousand dollars per year more than we get for it. In short, we do not look upon circulation as a source of revenue, and if any of our friends should feel disposed to weep for us because our contemporaries say we have lost part of our circulation, we beg of them to withhold their tears until they see us pulling out on our eyes.

But that nobody friendly to us, may be disturbed by reports, it is right to say, that the circulation of the Commercial is larger than it was one week ago, and is gaining daily and rapidly. Certain influence was brought to bear to affect it, under which our pecuniary resources suffered, during the week, as near as we can calculate, to the amount of one dollar and seventy-five cents. This loss was said to be in consequence of the expression of certain opinions not in unison with the views of some who consider themselves our patrons. Freedom of speech cost us one dollar and seventy-five cents; and to that extent we are poorer for having told what we believe to be the truth. Who under such circumstances cannot afford once in a while to speak his mind. The Commercial is making money. Its proprietors are careful, temperate business men, who understand their vocation, and are neither ashamed nor afraid to work at it. They are above being patronized, and need no necessity to curry favor by the suppression of a truth, or the utterance of a falsehood. Let the world wag as it may, we have not only the right to say our say, but the means to do it, and we prefer the approval of our own consciences to any wind that may blow in any direction.

The manner in which some people understand the liberty of the press and freedom of speech in this land of republican institutions, is sometimes a little funny. We have no prescription here, of course. It is only Proprietors that send editors to exile, and Popes give their subjects the choice of the chain-gang or the United States for entertaining opinions not in unison with their own.—Republicans believe in the doctrine of Mr. Jefferson, that "Error may be tolerated when Truth is left free to combat it." There is nothing we Americans love so much as an independent newspaper. We have had several conversations with a gentleman of this city, whose longings for an independent press were of intensest character. He would only have said a thing here, how gladly would he contribute to its support. Right or wrong, so long as he is only independent and conscientious, the editor would command universal support. His mistakes would be tolerated, in consideration of his honesty, and no republican would complain at the free and fair expression of his opinions. The other day that gentleman stopped taking the Commercial. Our views disagreed with him. Well, as we said, we can afford it.

The date and number of this paper, on the outside, is incorrect. It should be dated August 24; current number 24; whole number 422.

Collins D. Bradley is elected circuit Judge in the 24 Judicial District of this State, over Hiram McElroy. The official majority is 1036.

Here.—In St. Louis, on the 17th Inst., there were 13,000 bales of hemp in store. Holders are anticipating considerable success over present prices.

Since our article concerning the assault upon the editor of the Flag was put in type, we have received from an esteemed personal friend in this county, a statement with reference to that difficulty; which, in justice to Major Flournoy, our correspondent desires to publish. The statements may be implicitly relied on; and to some minds it will go far in palliating if not in justifying the course pursued by Flournoy. While it affords us pleasure to comply with the request of our correspondent, we frankly confess that we see no cause to recall our censure of the action of Flournoy; others, whose opinions are at least worthy of as much respect as ours, may think very differently and possibly censure us for our candid expression of opinion with reference to the difficulty. Be it so; in the discharge of what we conceive to be our duty, we never pause to consider 'what will Mrs. Grundy say!' unless by soft words and hard arguments our reason is convinced that we have erred in judgment.

That Flournoy had heard of, but had not seen the article in the Flag before he reached Lexington; that immediately upon reading it he proceeded to the spot where Mr. Pike was; that he was not informed until after the attack, of Mr. Pike's apology to Col. Taylor; that the paragraph in the Flag was pinfully wounding, to the already lacerated feelings of Ward's relatives, then and there assembled at Blue Licks; and that Flournoy conceived that he was righting his own wrongs, in thus assailing Pike upon reading an article grossly offensive to him personally as a near relative of Ward; in short, that his attack was the unpremeditated impulse of personal indignation, extenuated somewhat, but by no means justified his offence, in our eyes.

But this is a private question between Messrs. Pike and Flournoy, and we have no wish to 'scald our fingers in other folks' broths'; so, having done simple justice, as we conceive, to both parties concerned, we shall, if possible, after giving a condensed statement of the communication we have received, bury the whole affair 'in the tomb of the Capulet'; a course of action, the adoption of which we would sincerely and earnestly recommend to all parties concerned—especially the intelligent gentlemen. Our correspondent, who professes to speak from personal knowledge, says:—

"Mr. Pike charges that the relations and friends of Major Flournoy, to the number of some forty or fifty, armed, he would have it believed, had assembled, ready to fly to the rescue in case he should get the advantage in the fight. This is not true; it is belied by his own story, for the time which elapsed between his leaving the case and the fight, could not, according to his own showing, have been more than ten minutes; for he says he went directly from the case to the St. Louis office. The shortness of the time, then, renders it utterly impossible that such combinations could have been formed. The truth of the matter is this: Major Flournoy had ladies with him in the case; he went directly to Chiles' Hotel; the ladies were handed in at the private door, according to the custom of the hotel; by a friend who asked him if he had seen the paragraph in the Flag. He told him that he had heard of but had not seen it. He handed the article to Flournoy, who read it, and then took possession of a case which his friend held in his hand, while he handed him back his paper. His friend asked him what he meant. He told him the paragraph was evidently meant to wound Matt's friends, as well himself, and that he meant to whip the author off on sight. He made his friend promise to say nothing and not to follow him. Two minutes did not elapse from that moment until Pike was attacked and under bars and bolts. There could not have been more than three or four persons who knew of the proposed attack; for Major Flournoy did not know of it himself ten minutes before it occurred. Mr. Pike had told Mr. Flournoy was armed with a cane and nothing else; so they were on a equality. Pike charges that Flournoy attacked him on Ward's account; this is not so; under the circumstances of time and place, Ward's relatives had the right to think the editor of the Flag was as regardless of their feelings as he was of Ward's; and that he was ready and willing to take the responsibility of his act. The editor did not seem to so regard it; and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were Ward's relatives? Speaking at time and place making this paragraph personal to Ward's relatives, it is a fact that many of them, possibly one hundred, were at the Blue Licks, and his excuse for coming across dressed in blood-stained attire is in substance, that he did not know Ward was akin to certain families. A poor excuse, indeed! I do not know that his feelings are entitled to more immunity than others. The whole issue of the published article and of the one suppressed, takes the ground that he would not have made the publication if he had known Ward's relatives were there; in an admission, in effect, that the great shell was not only expected to wound Ward, but also his relatives?—According to his own showing the editor only got the punishment he deserved; for the fault, it would seem, lies in the whipping but in his not knowing who were

A DESIRABLE Scott Farm for Sale.
H. J. MAY.
The farm is situated on the...
August 10, 1854.

NOTICE
The death of Mr. E. C. Rinkins...
August 10, 1854.

Bennett's Imperial Tonic
A. TRIMBLE.
August 10, 1854.

"Elly Elgin & Southern Belle"
A. TRIMBLE.
August 10, 1854.

Premium Indelible Writing Ink.
A. TRIMBLE.
August 10, 1854.

Bennett's Vegetable Purifier.
A. TRIMBLE.
August 10, 1854.

GANO'S STE. CATTLE AUCTION AND STOCK SALE.
J. W. GANO.
August 10, 1854.

GOLD EAGLE.
J. W. GANO.
August 10, 1854.

A FINE SCOTT FARM
AT PUBLIC SALE.
J. W. GANO.
August 10, 1854.

164 ACRES
J. W. GANO.
August 10, 1854.

Indian Cough Balsam.
J. W. GANO.
August 10, 1854.

Indian Cough Balsam.
J. W. GANO.
August 10, 1854.

MARKET HOUSE.
ROBERT F. KIDD.
August 10, 1854.

DANCING ACADEMY.
MR. D. D. RICHARDSON.
August 10, 1854.

DANCING ACADEMY.
MR. D. D. RICHARDSON.
August 10, 1854.

READ THIS—MORRIS FOR THIS
MR. D. D. RICHARDSON.
August 10, 1854.

READ THIS—MORRIS FOR THIS
MR. D. D. RICHARDSON.
August 10, 1854.

READ THIS—MORRIS FOR THIS
MR. D. D. RICHARDSON.
August 10, 1854.

READ THIS—MORRIS FOR THIS
MR. D. D. RICHARDSON.
August 10, 1854.

READ THIS—MORRIS FOR THIS
MR. D. D. RICHARDSON.
August 10, 1854.

READ THIS—MORRIS FOR THIS
MR. D. D. RICHARDSON.
August 10, 1854.

READ THIS—MORRIS FOR THIS
MR. D. D. RICHARDSON.
August 10, 1854.

READ THIS—MORRIS FOR THIS
MR. D. D. RICHARDSON.
August 10, 1854.

READ THIS—MORRIS FOR THIS
MR. D. D. RICHARDSON.
August 10, 1854.

READ THIS—MORRIS FOR THIS
MR. D. D. RICHARDSON.
August 10, 1854.

READ THIS—MORRIS FOR THIS
MR. D. D. RICHARDSON.
August 10, 1854.

READ THIS—MORRIS FOR THIS
MR. D. D. RICHARDSON.
August 10, 1854.

VENI VIDI VULVI PULVERMACHERS
Hydro-Electric Voltaic Chains!
August 10, 1854.

VENI VIDI VULVI PULVERMACHERS
Hydro-Electric Voltaic Chains!
August 10, 1854.

VENI VIDI VULVI PULVERMACHERS
Hydro-Electric Voltaic Chains!
August 10, 1854.

VENI VIDI VULVI PULVERMACHERS
Hydro-Electric Voltaic Chains!
August 10, 1854.

VENI VIDI VULVI PULVERMACHERS
Hydro-Electric Voltaic Chains!
August 10, 1854.

VENI VIDI VULVI PULVERMACHERS
Hydro-Electric Voltaic Chains!
August 10, 1854.

VENI VIDI VULVI PULVERMACHERS
Hydro-Electric Voltaic Chains!
August 10, 1854.

VENI VIDI VULVI PULVERMACHERS
Hydro-Electric Voltaic Chains!
August 10, 1854.

VENI VIDI VULVI PULVERMACHERS
Hydro-Electric Voltaic Chains!
August 10, 1854.

VENI VIDI VULVI PULVERMACHERS
Hydro-Electric Voltaic Chains!
August 10, 1854.

VENI VIDI VULVI PULVERMACHERS
Hydro-Electric Voltaic Chains!
August 10, 1854.

VENI VIDI VULVI PULVERMACHERS
Hydro-Electric Voltaic Chains!
August 10, 1854.

VENI VIDI VULVI PULVERMACHERS
Hydro-Electric Voltaic Chains!
August 10, 1854.

VENI VIDI VULVI PULVERMACHERS
Hydro-Electric Voltaic Chains!
August 10, 1854.

VENI VIDI VULVI PULVERMACHERS
Hydro-Electric Voltaic Chains!
August 10, 1854.

BEFORE YOU BUY
And get the Best Bargain You Can!
August 10, 1854.

BEFORE YOU BUY
And get the Best Bargain You Can!
August 10, 1854.

BEFORE YOU BUY
And get the Best Bargain You Can!
August 10, 1854.

BEFORE YOU BUY
And get the Best Bargain You Can!
August 10, 1854.

BEFORE YOU BUY
And get the Best Bargain You Can!
August 10, 1854.

BEFORE YOU BUY
And get the Best Bargain You Can!
August 10, 1854.

BEFORE YOU BUY
And get the Best Bargain You Can!
August 10, 1854.

BEFORE YOU BUY
And get the Best Bargain You Can!
August 10, 1854.

BEFORE YOU BUY
And get the Best Bargain You Can!
August 10, 1854.

BEFORE YOU BUY
And get the Best Bargain You Can!
August 10, 1854.

BEFORE YOU BUY
And get the Best Bargain You Can!
August 10, 1854.

BEFORE YOU BUY
And get the Best Bargain You Can!
August 10, 1854.

BEFORE YOU BUY
And get the Best Bargain You Can!
August 10, 1854.

BEFORE YOU BUY
And get the Best Bargain You Can!
August 10, 1854.

BEFORE YOU BUY
And get the Best Bargain You Can!
August 10, 1854.

BEFORE YOU BUY
And get the Best Bargain You Can!
August 10, 1854.

SCOTT FARM!
T. S. BARKLEY & CO.
August 10, 1854.

SCOTT FARM!
T. S. BARKLEY & CO.
August 10, 1854.

SCOTT FARM!
T. S. BARKLEY & CO.
August 10, 1854.

SCOTT FARM!
T. S. BARKLEY & CO.
August 10, 1854.

SCOTT FARM!
T. S. BARKLEY & CO.
August 10, 1854.

SCOTT FARM!
T. S. BARKLEY & CO.
August 10, 1854.

SCOTT FARM!
T. S. BARKLEY & CO.
August 10, 1854.

SCOTT FARM!
T. S. BARKLEY & CO.
August 10, 1854.

SCOTT FARM!
T. S. BARKLEY & CO.
August 10, 1854.

SCOTT FARM!
T. S. BARKLEY & CO.
August 10, 1854.

SCOTT FARM!
T. S. BARKLEY & CO.
August 10, 1854.

SCOTT FARM!
T. S. BARKLEY & CO.
August 10, 1854.

SCOTT FARM!
T. S. BARKLEY & CO.
August 10, 1854.

SCOTT FARM!
T. S. BARKLEY & CO.
August 10, 1854.

SCOTT FARM!
T. S. BARKLEY & CO.
August 10, 1854.

SCOTT FARM!
T. S. BARKLEY & CO.
August 10, 1854.

SARSAPARILLA.
IN QUART BOTTLES.
August 10, 1854.

SARSAPARILLA.
IN QUART BOTTLES.
August 10, 1854.

SARSAPARILLA.
IN QUART BOTTLES.
August 10, 1854.

SARSAPARILLA.
IN QUART BOTTLES.
August 10, 1854.

SARSAPARILLA.
IN QUART BOTTLES.
August 10, 1854.

SARSAPARILLA.
IN QUART BOTTLES.
August 10, 1854.

SARSAPARILLA.
IN QUART BOTTLES.
August 10, 1854.

SARSAPARILLA.
IN QUART BOTTLES.
August 10, 1854.

SARSAPARILLA.
IN QUART BOTTLES.
August 10, 1854.

SARSAPARILLA.
IN QUART BOTTLES.
August 10, 1854.

SARSAPARILLA.
IN QUART BOTTLES.
August 10, 1854.

SARSAPARILLA.
IN QUART BOTTLES.
August 10, 1854.

SARSAPARILLA.
IN QUART BOTTLES.
August 10, 1854.

SARSAPARILLA.
IN QUART BOTTLES.
August 10, 1854.

SARSAPARILLA.
IN QUART BOTTLES.
August 10, 1854.

SARSAPARILLA.
IN QUART BOTTLES.
August 10, 1854.